● LOKSATTA ANNUAL LECTURE

Climate to AI: CJI calls for wider ambit for federalism

‘Federalism should be evaluated based on ability to foster democracy... equality, liberty’

OMKAR GOKHALE
Mumbai, October 26

CALLING FOR A more expansive definition of federalism, Chief Justice of India D.Y. Chandrachud on Saturday said that if the federalism in the past years was about adjusting political realities, in the years to come, it should also be evaluated based on its ability to foster democracy and constitutional ideals of equality, liberty, dignity and fraternity.

Federalism needs to take into account the rapidly changing imperatives of governance, he suggested, given that “climate change, artificial intelligence and cybercrime transcend territorial boundaries which form the basis of federal units” and they “ill fit the conventional modes of union and state subjects.”

CJI Chandrachud was delivering the inaugural lecture in the Loksatta (of the Express Group) Annual Lecture series at Mumbai University Convocation Hall. He was speaking on “Understanding federalism and its potential”.

“The unique nature of our polity has ensured that the predominant strength of the Union is counterbalanced by the plenary power of our states,” he said, adding that the states and the Union are both creatures of the Constitution.

“They must act in synergy and cooperation in finding meaningful solutions to modern day problems. Our ability to address these challenges, in my view, is the litmus test for

CJI Chandrachud said that federalism needs to take into account the rapidly changing imperatives of governance our model of federalism and the founders’ faith in it. I hope and wish that we eventually find these solutions in cooperation. And mutual allegiance to our common constitutional goals.” Speaking on “future of federalism in India,” the CJI added that the Constitution was “meant to be a transformative document and not a static one” and emphasised new challenges. “Climate change is not just a concern for one of our and was viewed as a principle that condoned discriminatory practices of the states. “On the other hand, in the Indian context, critical engagement with the idea of federalism has been sparse. We almost unquestionably accept federalism as a good value in our political system. That is because the Indian Constitution has a very strong social conception of equality and liberty; thus conferring independent legislative and executive power to the states was never viewed as an avenue of enabling or permitting socially undesirable outcomes. So it’s important for us to realise that distinct concept of federalism in India. When the Constitution was adopted as a socially transformative document, it gave to us a constitution where fundamental human rights would be recognised. Therefore, federalism was never regarded as a mask.”

Speaking on communication between the Central and state governments, he said: “The dialogues between the Union and the States must be placed on two ends of the spectrum. Collaborative discussions that cooperative federalism fosters are at the end of one spectrum and interstitial contestations are at the other hand. Both forms of dialogue are equally important for federalism to flourish. Federalism does not entail only convenient outcomes but is equally welcoming of some contest.”

CJI Chandrachud added that constitutional courts including High Courts and Supreme Court “shape the federal system through interpretation of distribution of powers and other manifestations of federalism.” The Court has evolved a robust jurisprudential framework on federalism to ensure that the state rights are protected.

coastal states. Every state in the nation bears the responsibility to answer the problems of climate change. We must remember the spatial impacts of these overarching problems. Some Indian states are much more severely impacted by the perils of climate change while some may be more prone to cyber attacks due to the greater volume or value of virtual transactions.”

He said that federalism was opposed by many in the West

EAM hails military, diplomacy for Indo-China LAC agreement

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA
Pune, October 26

EXTERNAL AFFAIRS MINISTER S Jaishankar credited the breakthrough agreement with China on patrolling along the Line of Actual Control to the military which worked in “very very unimaginable” conditions and deft diplomacy. During an interaction with students at a Pune college, Jaishankar said it is still a bit early for normalisation of relations which will naturally take time to rebuild a degree of trust and willingness to work together.

He said that when Prime Minister Narendra Modi met Chinese President Xi Jinping at Kazan in Russia for the BRICS summit, it was decided that the foreign ministers and national security advisers of the two countries would meet and see how to move forward. “If today we have reached where we have... One is because of the very determined effort on our part to stand our ground and make our point. The military was there in very very unimaginable conditions to defend the country, and the military did its part and diplomacy did its part,” Jaishankar said, adding, “Today we have put in five times more resources annually than there used to be a decade ago which is showing results and enabling the military to actually be effectively deployed. The combination of these (factors) has led to where it is.”

Earlier this week, India announced an agreement with China on patrolling along the LAC in eastern Ladakh, in a major breakthrough in ending the over four-year-long military standoff. Since 2020, the situation on the border has been disturbed and India had been negotiating with China on how to find a solution. The EAM said there were different aspects of this solution.

The pressing one is disengagement because troops are very close to each other and the possibility of something happening exists. Then there is de-escalation because of troop buildup on both sides, he added. “Then there is a larger issue of how you manage the border and negotiate the boundary settlement,” he said.

ED raids in ticket sales ‘scam’ for Diljit, Coldplay concerts

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA
New Delhi, October 26

THE ENFORCEMENT DIRECTORATE (ED) said it has detected alleged irregularities after it conducted raids in a money laundering case to probe “black marketing” of tickets for two “highly anticipated” music concerts by British rock band Coldplay and singer Diljit Dosanjh.

The searches were undertaken on Friday at 13 locations in five states — Delhi, Maharashtra, Rajasthan, Karnataka and Punjab — after the federal investigation agency filed a criminal case under various sections of the Prevention of Money Laundering Act (PMLA).

While Dosanjh’s ‘Dil-Lumini’ concert took place at the Jawahar Lal Nehru stadium in Delhi on Saturday, the Coldplay event ‘Music of the Spheres World Tour’ is slated for January 2025 in Navi Mumbai.

The ED said that it initiated an investigation after numerous reports emerged that individuals als and fans were being “deceived/cheated” through fraudulent ticket sales after the rapid sellout of entry passes.

The agency took cognisance of multiple police FIRs filed in the case across the country, including one filed by online ticket booking portal BookMyShow, against several suspects “believed to be exploiting concert-goers.” The FIR alleges that these individuals engaged in selling counterfeit tickets and drastically inflated prices, taking advantage of the high demand for these concerts, the ED said.

For both events, official ticketing partners like BookMyShow and Zomato Live reported that tickets were sold out in just minutes on their platforms, which “ultimately led to black-marketing at exorbitant prices.” Many fans have discovered that they were sold fake tickets or charged exorbitant prices for legitimate ones.

“Searches and investigation conducted by ED has revealed information regarding multiple individuals known for providing such tickets, including fake tickets through social media,” the agency said, adding that several “incriminating” materials in the form of mobile phones, laptops, SIM cards, etc used in the ticket sales “scam” were seized during the raids. The searches were aimed at investigating the illegal sales of tickets, financial networks supporting these scams, and tracing the proceeds of crime generated from such illegal activities, it said.

In a related development, the Delhi High Court on Thursday sought the response of the Centre on a plea seeking a regulatory framework to regulate the re-sale of concert tickets. The bench issued notice to Union ministries of Information and Broadcasting and Electronics, and Information Technology, private entities Stubhub Inc, Viagogo Entertainment Inc and Bigtree Entertainment.

difference between plain travel insurance and global medical cover. Travel insurance delivers emergency care only, which enables a trip back home for the policyholder to resume treatment here, if needed. But on the other hand, a few health insurance policies allow for planned global medical coverage, which enables inpatient hospitalisation in other countries. For policyholders considering overseas travel or treatment, it is necessary to keep abreast of the insurance policies available and the conditions that come attached with the same.

Medical covers in travel insurance range from $100,000 to $1 million and travellers are recommended to purchase insurance above $500,000 when travelling to developed countries. Travel insurance policies covering medical, trip-related and baggage-related covers would cost the policyholder less than ₹2,000 for a week's trip to the US. But the medical cover converted to domestic currency should not inspire false confidence. Only injury or sickness occurring during the trip are covered by this medical cover up to the sum insured. Any pre-existing disease or even complications arising from PED are not covered. If the attending physician or doctor judges that the current episode is a part of a pre-existing disease, coverage would be waived for the policyholder and expenses to be borne by them. This would add a large financial burden, especially if occurring in high-income countries. A life-threatening medical emergency on account of PED is covered, but only to relieve acute stress or pain and facilitate travel back home. This PED emergency sub-limit ranges from $2,000 to $5,000. The main prerequisite for medical care to be availed from travel insurance is that it should be vetted by a medical assistance company. As the travel policyholder anticipates the need for medical care, an 'assistance company'

- Travel insurance delivers emergency care only, which enables a trip back home
- Few of the health insurance policies allow for planned global medical coverage
- PED is an exclusion for travel insurance and three years for health insurance should be notified. This company, which is mostly managed by the TPA (Third party administrator), is notified beforehand to the policyholder at the time of travel. When the assistance company is notified of a medical emergency resulting from an accident or sickness, they will contact the medical facility relevant to the policyholder's location. In consultation with a physician, a best course of action will be determined, and necessary arrangements will be made by the insurer through the medical assistance company. Depending on the severity of the sickness or injury, the medical care will be again limited to fit-to-travel status of the policyholder. The policyholder can get appropriate treatment under the same travel insurance in India till a period of 90 days after the trip ends, based on the policy features. While medical cover under travel insurance is more ad hoc in nature, there are regular health policies offering global medical coverage. There are at least three insurers who are offering covers for planned medical care outside of India. Tata AIG's Global Combo – ₹1.1-crore cover costs ₹16,440 per year for a 30-year-old compared with ₹12,619 for regular policy. Similarly, Reliance's Health Infinity (More Global) cover of ₹1 crore that includes global coverage has a premium of ₹20,500 and Care Health's Global Coverage costs ₹72,190 for the same cover at the upper end of premiums. These policies will cover for planned medical expenses of the insured person incurred outside India, up to the sum insured, provided the diagnosis was made in India and the insured travels abroad for treatment. This obviously indicates that such treatment cannot be provided in the country. But the policies may not be entirely on a cashless basis. It may also be on reimbursement basis, which is dependent on the geography of the medical care. Also, PED exclusion of three years does apply as in regular medical insurance. The sum insured along with cumulative bonus accrued over the years may be used. Care Health may also allow restoration of cover for global coverage. With new-age policies allowing for 50-200 per cent increase in sum insured in four-six years, a significant cover amount which is appropriate for treatments outside of India may be accumulated on a No claim basis. Treatments like gene therapy and advanced cancer care are now available for policyholders with these policies. Tata AIG's Global policy also includes compassionate travel allowance within the cover, giving room for a companion to join the policyholder for the overseas treatment.

When a lender sanctions you a home loan, your eligibility is decided based on your income at the time of sanction. A home loan is generally taken during the initial stage of one's career, whereas the income increases over the years; therefore, the borrower is able to accumulate a significant amount of funds during this period. In such a situation, every home loan borrower faces the dilemma of whether to prepay the home loan with the accumulated surplus funds or invest these funds somewhere. It is not an easy question to answer for anyone as the answer varies from case to case and depends on various factors. Here are some important factors that you should consider before you make the decision either way. Tax impact significantly impacts all the investment decisions, including taking out and repaying the home loan. The principal repayment of home loans is eligible for deduction under Section 80C up to ₹1.50 lakh, along with other eligible items. You are also entitled to claim a deduction under Section 24(b) for the interest paid on home loan. The amount of deduction for interest varies depending on whether the property is self-occupied or let out. Both these tax benefits are available only if you opt for the old tax regime. If you opt for the new tax regime, no deduction is available for repayment of home loan or interest on money borrowed for self-occupied house property. Under the new tax regime, the deduction for interest in respect of a let-out property is restricted to the taxable amount of rent received. So, in case any part of the prepayment does not impact your tax deduction, you may consider repaying part of the home loan if you wish, after taking into account other factors. While repaying your home loan, it is very important for you to consider the immediate need for known reasons and any emergency. Your decision on whether to prepay and how much to prepay should be based on both considerations. This is specifically important, considering that home loans are generally cheaper than other loans, specifically personal loans. Once you have repaid the home loan and need money later on, you may have to borrow at a higher rate of interest. So please evaluate the cash flow position for the near future before deciding to prepay the home loan. This is the tiebreaker consideration for this decision. So whether to prepay the home loan or not would also depend on the return potential of the alternative investment products available for the deployment of your surplus funds and with which you are comfortable. In case the returns from such alternative investment products are expected to be higher in the long run, it does not make sense for you to prepay the home loan. One such alternative avenue available for investment is bonds being issued by NBFCs. The other alternative, depending on your risk profile, may be investing the money in equity through mutual funds for minimum 7-10 years, as the returns on equity funds have been generally higher than home loan rates for such long tenure. This makes sense as the home loan tenures are generally longer than 10 years in most cases. You need to compare the post-tax rates/returns in both cases to arrive at the decision. If you have any existing loan outstanding where the applicable rate of interest is higher, you should pay that loan first before considering prepaying the home loan. This is not only a non-monetary factor but also the most important one. People of the old school of thought do not want to have any debt, specifically on their place of residence, even if the decision does not make sense for them financially. This psychological reason contributes to a significant number of home loan prepayment cases in India.
